Supervision

All sites typically are outfitted with dual supervision with direct support from ownership. Supervisors are well trained in safety, quality control and critical path procedures. All work to be inspected on a daily basis before allowing subcontractors to move forward. When unacceptable workmanship, production, housekeeping, and safety issues occur they are handled immediately before allowing contractor to proceed. Non-compliance with result in termination of the subcontractor.

Supervisors are the result of specific training in this area of construction, including all critical paths relating to our scope. All supervisors have the capacity to manage the project on their own, with a strong support team behind them to produce a quality result. Supervisors will speak English & most are bi-lingual. With repeat accounts the Supervisor who serviced the product will stay consistent to the account and its specific product to enable historical data to be saved and re-used, reducing the “learning curve” effect, also allowing the customer to deal with someone they know, trust and respect on their job site.
